Submissions on our 2020-2025 Regulatory Proposal now available

We value the time our customers, stakeholders and community members have invested in reading and commenting on our 2020-25 Regulatory Proposal. The Australian Energy Regulator (AER) received a number of submissions which are available on its website here.

Next steps

The AER will consider all submissions in conjunction with their review of our 2020-25 Regulatory Proposal. A draft decision on our Proposal will be provided to us in September 2019. We will then be invited to respond to this decision and submit our Revised Proposal on 3 December 2019.

Our vegetation approach wins praise

SA Power Networks' collaboration with key stakeholders to improve vegetation management outcomes is the subject of a major feature in the May edition of Utility magazine.
Vegetation and trees form a fundamental and much-loved part of our urban and rural landscapes, but also pose significant risk near our powerlines. Ongoing vegetation management programs to minimise the risk of outages and bushfire starts caused by the interaction between tress and powerlines are a major focus of our business.

Adelaide to Gawler train electrification

SA Power Networks is currently working on one of Adelaide's major projects – the electrification of the Adelaide to Gawler train line. We are constructing a new connection point for the Department of Planning and Transportation Infrastructure (DPTI) at Kilburn to support the development. The images below show the new control building going up.

Reconciliation South Australia

SA Power Networks is a proud sponsor of Reconciliation South Australia. This week is National Reconciliation Week and some of our staff attended the National Reconciliation Week breakfast on Monday 27 May. Keynote speaker was Associate Professor Chelsea and videos from local primary schools were shared. The extraordinary Electric Fields Music also performed.

The theme this year is 'Grounded in Truth, Walk Together with Courage' which invites Australians from all backgrounds to contribute to a national movement towards a unified future.
